

Goblets are classified as “second” if there is a crack in the crystal. Suppose that the probability of finding a second is 10%. What is the probability that four good (not second) goblets are found within 5 selections?